

Please do not mess with Wisconsin's No Call List. Since we have signed up for it, unsolicited calls have been greatly reduced (with the exception of the extremely annoying political calls - which we understand you feel, for some reason, are necessary to exempt from the law) and we do not wish to have a watered down version like the federal law. Perhaps the federal government should take its cue from Wisconsin and put a really effective law into place rather than bowing to pressure from the lobbying groups who apparently have nothing better to do with their money than to make annoying telemarketing calls and pay for re-election of ineffective government officials.

Thank you.
